Leaving the London home of Mr Edward du Cann yesterday after a meeting of the Tory backbeech 1922 Committee, of which he is chairman, are, from the left, Mr Godman Irvine, Mr Geoffrey Finsberg and Mr John Osborn.

965, when he annouoced that 1965, when he annouoced that "the time was right to hand over the leadership to enother", talked about the oced to strengthen the organization of the Conservative Party and ehmioate its weaknesses. He was satisfied that that was he-ing done, be said, by the cur-rent chairman of the party— Mr dn Cann, who was later dismissed from that office by Mr Heath. Mr Heath.

Looking ahead to the first election of a Conservative leader, Sir Alec said: "I have leader, Sir Alec said: "I have asked our chairman [of the 1922 Committee] Sir William Anstruther-Gray, to set io motion the new procedures. I myself set up tha machinery for this change and I myself have chosen the time to use it.

"It is up to you to see that the election is completed swiftly and efficiently, and with dignity and calm."

The rules state: "Candidates will be proposed and seronded in writing. The chairman of the 1922 Committee aod a body of scrutineers designated by him will be available to receive commations. Each candidate will indicate on the nomination paper that be is prepared to accept nomination, and no candidate will accept more than comes up for decision. candidate will accept more than (t is worth noting that Sir one nomination. not be published and will he confidential to the scrutineers." Nominatioos close 24 hours before the ballot, and the rules allow for two or three ballots because of the majority re-quirements. For a candidate to win in the first ballot, he or she must "(1) receive an overall majority and (2) receive 15 per cent more of the votes cast thao any other candidate ". If no candidate scores that number of votes, the 276 Conservative MPs will have m attend in Com-mittee Room 14 at the Com-mons at a later date for a second ballot. Since Mr Heath was elected will proceed to add the number of first preference votes received by each candidate, climinate the candidate with the lowest number of first prefer. cnce votes, and redistribute the votes of those giving him their first preference amongst the two remaining candidates in accordance with their second preference. The result of this final count will be an overall majority for one candidate, and he will be elected." Before the July, 1965, ballon, it was announced that the 1921

executive had agreed to iovite each caodidate to have one MP (not an executive member) to attend as an observer No one who was in Committee

No one who was in Committee Room 14, or anywhere in the vicinity, will forget the excite-ment of the night of Mr Heath's election. His campaigo mand-gers were Mr Barber (later to be Chancellor) and Mr Walker (later Secretary of State for Industry), and it was Mr Walker who raced out of the meeting to announce the result: on July 27, 1965. about half of that "electorate" has changed; retirements alone account for 98 changes. Thus the political make-up of the party and the line-up of candidates would make an election in a few announce the result: Mr Edward Heath

Mr Reginald Maudling 133 Mr Enoch Powell

But it was not a decision. The mathematical requirement was not there for Mr Heath. Sir William Anstruther-Gray had to aonounce that a secued ballor would take place the exit day, July 28. Mr Heath had won a alasy maiority over Mr Man weeks' time an illuminating test of the new Conservative alignments. The rules state: "The second ballot will be held not less than two days and not more than four days after the first ballot, July 28. Mr Heath had won'a clear majority over Mr Maud-ling, and a majority over Mr Maudling and Mr Powell cum-hined, but had failed by 28 votes to establish the nece-sary lead over Mr Maudling of 15 per cent of the votes cast. In the event, a second ballor was not needed. Mr Maudling who beard the result when he was lunching in the Circ. excluding Saturdays and Sun-days. Nominations for the first ballot will be void, and new nominations, under the same procedure as for the first ballot, will be submitted for the original candidates if required and for any other caudidate." In the secood ballot, the "majority, plus 15 per cent" rule is dropped. If a caodidate was lunching in the City, immediately concluded that he ought to carry his challenge m further, and telephoned Mr Heath with his cungratulations raceives an overall majority, he wins, The rules continue: "If no candidate receives an overall majority, the three candidates receiving the highest number of and an offer tu serve under votes at the second hallot will . be placed on a ballot paper for a third and final ballot." him. A walkout by men who collect a meeting in the canteen and sort parcels at the Western district office in London yester-day halted parcel services in the W1 area. Parcel sorters and drivers

slopped work in protest at the disruption of their caoteen facilities after men from the letter sorting section had held a meeting in the canteen. A spokesman for the London Postal Region said : "There has been simmering dissatisfaction for some time among Western district office staff over the continual disruption of canteen facilities by letter-section men holding snap meetings in the canteen."

The walkout was the culmina tion of the dissatisfaction. The Post Office offered an alterntive meeting place within the building yesterday morning, but the offer was rejected. Soma parcel men returned to work in the afternoon, and oormal working is expected m he resumed today.

"Who the devil does ITT think it is?"

ITT is an international group of companies owned by an American parent, but run autonomously by local management.

In Britain, ITT's major companies include such famous names as Abbey Life Assurance, Sheraton hotels, and Rimmel cosmetics.

As well as some less well-known names who produce well-known products.

Ashe Laboratories, for example, who manufacture Amplex, Sucron and other familiar household products.

ITT Consumer Products, whose somewhat formal name hardly does justice to its popular televisions, radios and record players.

And Standard Telephones and Cables, ITT's largest British company, in the forefront of world telecommunications.

Unlike Rimmel, their name may not be on everyone's lips.

But like Rimmel, their products certainly are.

For further information please write to 190 Strand, London WC2R 1DU. ITT companies in Britain include: Abbey Life Assurance, Ashe Laboratories, Excess Insurance, ITT Consumer Products, Rimmel, Sheraton, Standard Telephones and Cables, and Standard Telecommunication Laboratories.

and in sectors of industry. The ucemployment becefits will be paid out of a fund managed by the Natiocal Ucloo for Employment. Part of the funds will be provided by the state and the balance by employers and workers to the ratio 80 to 20 per cect. The particle of the unemployer

The pasition of the unem-ployed person will be reviewed at three-moothly intervals. To benefit, he must be under 60; bave beld a job for the 12 mooths preceding dismissal; bave heen io regular aod not seasonal employment; aod be officially registered with the National Employment Agency. He must also oot have refused a job or a professional training course proposed by the agency. The term "eco-oomic reasons" is defined in the agreement as covering loss of employment through failure of busicess nr structural chaoges, iccludiog declared hankruptcies or liquidations, such as was the case with the Lip watchmaking coocern io the summer of 1973.

The agreement is another important achievement in the policy of cooperation with the unions to which M Fraoçois Ceyrac, the president of the CNPF, has devoted himself for years. He bad already coocluded an agreement on pro-fessional training of up to one year, with pay. The negotiations which led to today's agreement were dif-ficult and lasted three months. Had agreement not been reached by December 31 the Government would have settled the matter by law. The employers at first sought to limit the benefits to collective dismissals, of the Lip type, but the unions success-fully argued that it should apply to all dismissals, includ-ing individual ooes, if the rea-sons were economic. However, the CNPF smod firm on the point that each case would be reviewed at three-monthly intervals by a joint commission.

While seeking to avoid encouraging employers to declare redundancies without making the effort to work out adjustments, it did not want to give employees a chance to take a year's leave with pay. The actual share of the state was being discussed this after-nooo with the Minister of Labour by union employers' representatives. and

It will amount to a lump sum of 1,071m francs (£97m) and could be increased if the number of unemployed rose sufficiently.

The CFDT, the CFTC (the Christian Workers Unioo) and Force Ouvrière bad made it known in advaoce that they would sign the agreement. The CGT had withbeld its answer corf had withbeld its answer to order to consult its members, but it could not hold hack from ao agreement which contained such obvious and far-reaching heoefits for wage earners at a time when guaran-tee of employment is a main preoccupation, and leads the more militaot unions to soft pedal their demands and their agitation. agitation.

This explains why they are ready to comhine protest with discussion with the Govern-ment and the employers. Today and tomorrow, the CGT and the CFDT are organizing nationwide protests against the reform of the social security system decided nn by the Government at Lynns last month. The unions claim-and they have widespread support among the rank and file—that the reform is being carried out at the expense of the wage earners

Delegations will go to the National Assembly where the Bill comes up for discussion tomorrow, and M Jacques Chirac, the Prime Minister, will receive representatives of the union organizations. One of the main points they will raise is the reinforcement of the 1969 agreement on redundancies

While the unions insist no the widest protection for the uoemployed—aod they have obtained it—they remain ultra-sensitive on the subject of redundancies.

One of the deep-rooted beliefs in this country is that it is politically and socially suicidal to have more than 500,000 unemployed. The CNPF regards this as nonsense, given that there is effective protection.

It is no longer a time for anyhody to be making money; it's got to be earned.

Money : It's got to be earned, Our first overriding task is to make progress in paying our way abroad. We cannot hupe in the next two or three years to bridge the whole gap, including the cost of nil. Nor can the oil-importine world. If all the nations seek to halance their accounts by cutting back their imports the world will in. back their imports, the world will spiral down ioto a slump such as we have not seeo sloce the 1930s. prices arising from world causes, to protect them by subsidies, by righter price coorrols. But subsidies have to come out of taratioo, and we are well aware that tighter price controls are causing increas-ing problems not coly for retail trade but also for industry, particularly the smaller busioesses.

We reject a lurch into heavy un-employment as a means of figbdng ioflation. It is cruel; It costs the country production we caonot afford to lose; and the history of these post-war years lo one country and another has showo that it does not work.

it is our strong determinadon the difficult period ahead not iet events determine the level unemployment, but so to act that we outselves remain in control. But that means all of us. Fighdng inflation is a matter of national survival. It is the main threat to the standard of living of the family, a threat to the sur-vival of businesses, and to employ-

That is what the social contract is about, and it is going to be more vitally necessary than ever in these months and years ahead that that contract be hoboured, in the spirit and the letter.

The Governmeot which faces Parliament next week placed a manifesio before the parlon. It is a programme for a full Parlia-ment, which we shall carry through. I believe that a great deal of the cynicism in this and other democratic countries comes from a belief that governments make promises to get into office and do not carry them out when they are there.

Rees plea for public help over shootings

From Rohert Fisk

Dublio On his first day hack in Northero Ireland as Secretary of State after the election, Mr or State after the electron, Mi Rees yesterday appealed to the public to come forward with any scrap of information about the latest and iocreasingly savage wave of sectariao shoot-iogs in Belfast.

He held a loog meeting with Mr James Flanagan, the chief constable, and a number of senior Army officers from Lis-hurn. The Government later issued a statemeot, presumably inteoded to reassure the Roman Catholics, that four men bad heeo charged with three of the 10 murders that have taken place to the city in the past month. Eight of the 10 victims were Catholics.

Whether this reassurance will he of aoy use remains to he seen, for yesterday there were reports that at least two Roman Catholic priests had been advising their parishiooers in dangerous districts of Belfast to store food aod keep off the streets.

Late on Suoday night there had been two more assassinatioo altempts. In one, shots were fired through the wiodow of a a coalition Executive. house in a predominantly Protestant housing estate at Rath-coole. With sectarian attacks now a regular nightly affair, it is perhaps not surprising that some Catholics are sceptical about the ability of the police to arrest those iovolved. Another figure released by the Government yes-terday said that 96 people had been arrested in connexico with crimes that bad involved violence over the past mooth.

Mr Gerard Fitt, the leader of the Social Democratic and Labour Party, is to consult the Prime Minister about the mur-ders aod demaod tougher action, although Mr Wilson can scarcely tell him anything more than Mr Rees. Meanwhile Mr Rees is preparing a major policy statement on Northern Ircland to be issued some time this week or early next week. It is expected that he will give some hint as to the date of elections to the Northern Ireland Convention. Most loyalist orliticians now expect these elections to be held in the spring, although some Catholic leaders have sug-gested that they may never bo held at all, and that the British neid at all, and that the string are no longer interested in a poll in which a hard-line majority of Protestants would refuse to accept nationalists in

With the returo of Mr Rees as Secretary of State, the Dub-lin Government has resigned it-self to a further period io which no loog-term initiative will be taken by the authorities in Ulter Ulster-While that may seem an unwhile that may seem an un-geoerous assessment of the present British role in the North, Irish mioisters neverthe-less expect to continue what officials describe as a "bearty" relationship with Wbiteball.

Several ministers, iocluding Mr Cosgrave, the Prime Minis-ter, had been hoping for a Con-servative election victory. They believe Conservative ministers have appeared to be tougher on "loyalists". There is a feeling that Mr Rees may not remain at Stormoot Castle for very long. One feeling in Dublin is that One feeling in Dublin is that he may remain there until Christmas, to be replaced by Mr Roy Hattersley. That is a suspicion held by at least one minister, although there is no evidence at present that Mr Wilson is thinking in that direc-tion ton. There is some sympathy for Mr Rees who has been attacked by all sides in the North, but the Government be-lieves there will be no strong politician appointed to Stor-mont as long as Mr Wilson re-mains Prime Minister. The Cabinet believes that Mr Wilson insists on taking maior decisions in Fermanagh and South Tyrone yesterday, Mr Frank Maguire, who heat Mr Harry insists on taking major decisions West, the Unionist leader, in perhaps the most influential civil servaot at Stormont, at times plays a more important part in policy-making than the minister. That is a view that the Britisb would cootest.

There are, of course, strains within both parties in the Duhlin coalition Government and some of them will show through in Galway this weekend when the Irish Labour Party holds its annual conference. Dr Conor Cruise O'Brien, the Mioister for Post and Telecommuni-cations, is likely to come under strong attack from leftists in the party who want the frish to take a tougher and more active lice over Ulster.

The Dublin Covernment, however, views with little sur-prise the election results in the North, io which Ulster Unicoists held 10 of the 12 seats with more than 40.000 votes above their February total.

For the present, the authori-ties have enough vinlence on their hands south of the border to keep their minds occupied. # Warning on quality of tapes as Watergate cover-up trial starts

From Patrick Brogan Washington, Oct 14

Washington, Oct 14 When the Watergate cover-up trial opened here this morniog, the prosecutor prom-ised to prove that the attempts of the legitimate law enforce-ment officers of the United States to investigate the Water-gate burghary were thwarted by the most important officials of the Government, including the President.

the President. Mr Richard Ben Veniste, ooe of the team of Watergate spe-cial prosecutors, began present-ing the case after e two-hour delay, during which points of law were discussed in the pri-vacy of Judge John Sirica's chambers. Mr Ben Veniste said he would give a description of the events which he claims he can prove and a summary of the evidence that he will present. The trial will probably last beyond Christmas.

MPs march to Thieu palace in Saigon protest Saigon, Oct 14.—Twenty-two National Assembly deputies, most of them normally co-operative towards the Govern-ment, today joined in the growing political fermeot in South Vietnam by marching to the presidential malace to also the presideotial palace to air complaints to President Thieu. They told reporters they wanted to tell him of the people's complaints over corruption and restrictions, as well as their own protests over proceedings in the National Assembly. This followed a row in the Assembly this morning during debate on the election of the legislature's officers. Some deputies alleged Government inter-ference in the elections and two Opposition members burnt copies of the House rules.—Reutet.

Peronist dead in La Plata attack

Buenos Aires, Oct 14.—Three cat loads of men using machine guns and rifles shot up the headquarters of the left-wiog Peronist youth organizatioo in La Plata during the night. Señor Juan Caclos Leiva, aged 24, one of three people wounded in the incident, died today in hospital, bringing to at least 155 the number killed this year in Argentine political tolence .--- UPI.

Some time ago all our customers' statements were handwritten. In narrative form.Thentypewritten.Andtenyears ago handed over to a computer. But one that could write intelligently.

Our customers still want (and therefore still get) narrative statements. They require a highly attentive bank. One reason is that their current accounts are usually both busy and substantial-say, on average £,500 in credit though they may fluctuate over the year.

In such circumstances, you're likely to find our modern but personal banking a considerable asset. Apart from the full narrative statement-which you can have as often as you like-we go to a lot of trouble to save you trouble.

For instance, because you're likely to be busy, we'll provide such things as cheque, cash and credit cards as soon as you become a customer. We realise you'll need them without fuss or bother.

We also expect you to use your account to the full. So the number of entries, banker's orders and direct debits is unlimited.

You can draw money on Coutts cheques anywhere in the country, through the cashing arrangements we'll make for you at banks convenient to you.

This attentive attitude runs through all our banking services, whether it's managing investments or advising on taxation. We've all the experts - and the busier you keep them, the more time we save you.

Soif you're now ready to make a big step forward in your banking, write to Alastair Davidson who has a management team ready to help you at Coutts & Co., 1 Suffolk Street, London SW1Y 4HE or just put your name and address on this advertisement and post it to him.

By Michael Phillips Rscing Correspondent The first two days of the Hough to take shape yesterday when to take shape yesterday when the four day of the take shape yesterday when the four the Dewburst Stakes, which has been sponsored by the William Hill orgaolzadoo again. We have arown accustomed to challeogers from thet quarter over the years, and O'Brieo won the race with Dermot Weld, the oew big name in Irisb racing, to take the biddative. With over 100 winners this year (his 'tally Includes jumpers), Weld is enjoying a phenomenal seasoo. Thirteeo of his wiooers bave been to England, and they ioclude such triumphs as the Gimerack Stakes, the Middle park Stakes, and the Queen Mary Stakes.

Steel Reart, who has been responsible for two of those triumphs, is to try to add the Dewhurst Stakes to his steadily proving list of acbievements, and percenting list of acbievements, and he will do so almost exactly a year after the day that his owner, Ravi Tikkoo, bid 71,000 guioeas to buy him on the last day of the Hough-ton Yeacling Sales. Mr and Mrs Walter Davison, the breedars of Steel Heart have every reason to Steel Heart, have every reason to take an iotense interest io the ootcome of Friday's Dewhurst Stakes, because less than 24 hours after the race they will be selling his yonger sister, a gree filly foaled oo March 3 last year. More interesting still was her very personal interpretation of Schumaon's "Der Nusshaum", which abe makes a far more introspective tale than must singers do. This time her view of allegretto was not oute as slow as on a recent risit, which helped her to float the melndy more easily, and Geoffrey Par-sons to do wonders with the whispering branches of the keyboard part. But because of downward transposition, she experienced some difficulty with the low-lying phrase at the eod, where the maideo listcos, yearns and dreams.

Best of all, though, were the more intimate songs, starting with a beautifully timed and sustained "Das verlassene Mägdlein". And no one in the world knows better than Mine Schwarzkopf how to capture the mercurial mood changes of so many of the lirelier love-soogs in the Italian Song Book, where stinging tears lie so close to the mocking laughter.

The latest allegorical discussion of the problem of the political succession in China iodicates fears that those who come after the present leaders may prove unequal to the task of defeoding what has been created. The discussion takes the form of an analysis of the reasons for the downfall of the Chin Dynasty in the third century before Christ, the first dynasty to provide China with stroog cen-tralized government.

A historian at the University of Yuman, Mr Yang Kuang Han, analyses the prohlem as being centred on the class alle-giance of the idealogues and advisers whom a ruler collects around himsalf. Writing in the Pekiog newspaper, Kuang Ming Daily, he poses the question: Why did the Chin Dynasty, whose foundation is nowadays represented as the most important revolutionary event in ancient China, last a mere 15 years before it was overthrown by peasant revolt

With the geoeral caveat that present day cooditions are not the same as those prevailing in accient times, the author none-theless states that this period of history contains "profound lessons '

"It is not easy to establish a new social order, and to con-solidate it is even barder", Mr Yang writes. "A long and repeated struggle must be carried oo."

The raising of this issue is a good clue to the thinking of the Chinese leadership at present, for the much cited campaign agaiost Lio Piao and Confucius, which was carried on actively which was carried on actively for the past year, was centred to a large extent on the politics of the Chin Dynasty and earlier ages. Everyone now knows that when these subjects are dis-cussed they are meant to have relevance to the contemporary age. So when a national organ of propaganda discusses the reasons for the Chin Dynasty's early downfall everyone is early downfall, everyone is aware that warnings are being issued about the future of China when old age finally forces the present leadership to band over

Chinese theorists would prob-ahly rationalize this by saying that Chairman Mao Tse Tung's policy is to rehabilinate officials who have recognized their who have recognized their mistakes, and this is presum-ably considered to apply to the 50 or so promioent peopla who reappeared unexpectedly on September 30.

But does Mr Yang's acalysis of the situatioo conceal a warn-ing, sanctiooed from above, that there are othars, not yet rebabilitated, who might pose a threat to socialism in Cbina if thay returned to public life? Another salient feature of his point of the massive mechanical maps and diagrams, none of which, with the possible and minimal exception of Mc-Kenzie's "Battleground", added anything whatever to our knowledge or comprebension of the electoral process, either in groeral or in particular? What, in particular, was the point of the Londoo-and-Home-Counties jigsaw-puzzle map and diagram ? (Actually, that question can be asswered; the BBC, no doubt breathless with self-admiration, has appointed a woman-what Robin was goiog to hit him; lostead, he leaned forward and asked Mr Whitelaw whether our electoral system was FAIR. Mr Whitelaw mumbled something about seeing whether other systems might be fairer the only relevant remark he made throughout) and fled, sweaing. But Day had served us well. Before I go any farther, there is the matter of the television the matter of the television results programmes on election night. I usually stick with the BBC throughout the nighl, but last week I channel-hopped back and forth, and what I saw con-vinced me of what I have been suspecting for several elections past: that the presentation oo both services. but much more so oo the BBC, has become an

With those matters out of the way, I turn now to the burden of my complaint. I do not think of my complaint. I do not think I am putting it too stroodly when I say that the election-oight pro-grammes, especially that of the BBC, have become a giganic coojuring-trick, and I thiok I can coovey what I meao by pointing to the poll conducted on election day itself, outside the polling stations. Electors in scores of coostituencies ware asked, as they emerged, how they had actually voted, thus lending an air of reality-spurious, as Not, of course, a political one. Indeed, I was more impressed than ever by the scrupulous imthan ever by the scrupulous im-paroality of the programmes; it would be impossible to deduce persooal political affiliations, or eveo to gather the smallest clue to these, from the com-meots or demeanour of the rival teams of Burnet, Butler, Day and McKenzie on the ooe hand, and Kee. Snow aod Jay oo the other—all of whom are, after all, meo of powerfully-held convictions. an air of reality stee, this tending an air of reality—spurious, as we shall see—to the question which, throughout the campaigo, has to be asked in the inture tense. The results were digested by the computers, and we were offered the result of the election. Nor am I referriog to the content of the comments, discontent of the comments, dis-cussiona and ioterviews, though one point oeeds making bere, for I see that fools are ooce again criticiziog Robio Day for his "aggressive" interviewing. In fact, Day is, io his handliog ortered the result of the election. The forecasts were fullariously wrong, but that is nor what I am complaining about. (What I think we have to ask is: how mucb did this preposterous exercise cost, and what was the point of it? Within a matter of the politicians, only asking on our behalf the questions that on our behalf the questions that they must answer; and this is most true, and moat visibly true, io that very small minority of interviews in which, while refuses to allow an evasion to stand as a reply. The best example last week was his questioning of Mr Whitelaw (who, bad it not heen for the brief incursion of Mr Campbell Adamson, would have easily walked away with the title of the least impressive figure to of minutes, the results were coming io: who authorized this waste of money to provide a had guess at what we were about to learo in reality?

For that particular idiocy is only a symbol of the general idiocy that oow grips both channels on election night, and that has resulted in a complete misunderstandiog of the function of the results programmes, and a colossal outpouring of money for no useful purpose wbatever.

How much, for instance, did the BBC speed on computer time during the two days, and why? David Butler, using nothing but a slide-rule, used to tell us within a few seconds what the swing was as soon as the figures were aonounced; what, other than the fact that the election-night programme seems now to he in the bands so to speak, a savage attack on of grown-up children with un-the ur-existentialist philosophy limited pocket-mooey, is the of Heidegger. The election scandal that has nothing to do with political parties

What has gone wrong? Why this absurd waste of money and effort in telling us now what we would in any case the deflection of the pro-grammes' true purpose ioto a race to get the results on to the screece a few seconds before the rival team. But 1 think it is also, and probably to a greater degree, the seduction by machinery of those coocerned. Typical is the "computer fore-cast" of the eventual result. This oo doubt seemed, because it was done by an impersonal machine, to be in some way more likely to get the result right than buman beings. But it only scems so to the inoumer-ates who decide these thiogs.

it only seems so to the inoumer-ates who decide these thiogs. The computer's forecast was grotesquely false to start with, aod only gradually began to approach the right answer as the night wore oo. But at no point was it ahead, with its guess, of the estimates that intelligent and well-informed human beiogs were providing. (Indeed, David Buller was far ahead of the computer in get-ting the right order of magni-tude for the fioal result.) Aod even that fact is oot the most important; the most important even that fact is oot the most important; the most important is, of course, the questioo why should huge sums of money be spent to provide jorecasts at all, when actual results were available more or less simultaneously?

What do we require from the election night programmes? First, of course, the individual results as they come in; for this, oone but the simplest machioery is required. Secood, an analysis of what the indivi-dual results indicate for the election as whole; for this, no machinery whatever is required. need to think about the electionnight operations; the time should be used by the broadcastiog authorities to nerve them-selves for the vital decision-to serves for the vital decision-ito throw away the entire studio-full of nseless machicer; and present the results as part of democracy rather than elecmachinery whatever is required. What has gone wroog ? Why this absurd waste of mooey and effort in telliog us oow what we would in aoy case know in a few mioutes ? I thick it is that both channels have simply for-gotteo what the function of the results programmes should be. In may be the silly ratings battle (nothing could better typify the childishoess of the entire operation than the immediate claims about the number of viewers watching each channel) which has led to the deflection of the pro-grammes' true purpose into a sway of electoral fortune again, no machinery is oceded. Fourth, comments, interviaws and statements from polincians and other significant figures; this, too, needs no machinery. I am oot just complaining I am oot just complaining about the waste of money (though since, in the case of the BBC at any rate, it is our mooey that is being wasted, I certaioly think the complaint is justified); there is a more fundamental criticism. Both programmes, oow little better than hoaxes, dangerously trivi-alize the whole polizical process. Flashing lights and computer printnuts and mechanical fore-

An election is about. 30,000,000 individual cholces based on bundreds of millions based on bundreds of millions of interlocking and cootradic-tory impulses and feelings, which go to make up the iofinitely complex web of poli-tical halance and battlefield that Parliament is. If the rele-vision programmes on election night present polifics as a game, the voters will io time hegin to think that it is a game, and think that it is a game, and that neither their vote nor the that neither their vote hor me ontcome matters any more than the result of a game. That would be a very dangerous tendency to creep into our democracy. At ooe momeot in the long night, the talk turned to the opinioo-poils; Robin Day described them fiercely as "a corruption of the democratic process". Fine champion of democracy though be is, he bad failed to see that the entire operation of which he was part is a corruption of the political process beside which the opinico-polis really do consti-tute only a barmless game. servative Party and for Sir Keith Joseph to do their economic thinking for them, hut Mr Whitelaw would he in the difficult position of having no real idea of whether Sir Keith Joseph was getting it right or not. For these reasons the halance of opinion in the Conservative Party in Parliament seems to bo that Mr Whitelaw's would he a workable leadership, and one that many people would welcome on personal grounds, but that it would not he an ideal arrangement. There is also a small minority who are bitterly opposed and think that the choice would be disastrous.

Powerful

Unfortunatoly negative feolings predominate about the other candidates as well. This makes the timing of Mr Heath's departure rather difficult to judge. Granted that be bas to go, should the Conservativas be given more time to think of the best successor, or will a quick decision avert a period of damaging mutual criticism and intrigue?

There seems to be a view that Mr Prior and Mr Carr would not wish to run against Mr Whitelaw, and it is not clear that Mr Carr wants to be leader of the Conservative Party at any time. Mr Carr is a man with a sense of duty, but be does not leave the impression of being a man with a thrusting personal ambition. Mr Prior belongs to a group of younger members of the Shadow Cahinet, including Mr Peter Walker and Mr Gilmour, who might well be considered for the vacancy next time round but do not seem likely this time. Apart from anything else the Conservative Party is genuinely very uncertain about who ought to he the new leader ; that situation always favours an older man wbo is likely to go on for a shorter period. Sir Keith Joseph and Mr du Cann are both candidates with considerable support among the serious economic right wing of the Conservative Party. Sir Keith Joseph is a powerful debater and has, along with Mr Gilmour, a fine intellect. Those who support him do not all expect him to win, but helieve, which may very well he true, that a good show of support will help to get the shadow chancel-lorship for him. Some of those wbo oppose him accept that he would like to survive Mr Heath, and they would prefer a candidate, like Mr Whitelaw or Mr Prior, from their own ranks. There are serious supporters for Mrs Thatcher notably among those who have worked with her, almost all of whom, whether they support ber for the leadership or not, have come to admire her very much. She is undoubtedly a very able politician, intelligent, constructive and hardworking. The opposition to her is partly that she is thought to be too right wing; that she would make the Conservatives too much of a middla class party, and partly October 14. that she is not one of those women who have a strong electoral appeal to other women. At present there doos not seem to he anywhere near enough support to make Mrs Thatcher a significant candidate. The same can be said at this stage of Sir Christopher Soames. Theoretically a very strong case can he made out for hringing Sir Christopbor Soames hack in the way that Sir Alec was brought back in 1963. It would he perfectly easy to manage. There is no difficulty in finding a member already thinking of retiring to give up his seat for a leader of the party. Sir Christopher Soames, like Mr du Sir Cann, is free from the responsibility of the late administration; far from being a Heath man, be is a man Mr Heath bas oot wanted hack. He is probably the strongest personality of all the possible candidates, and certainly has the longest and broadest political experience. He is the only major international figure apart from Mr Heatb that the Conservative Party has left in active political life, now that Sir Alec has retired. He has mastered the very complicated international economic prohlems, which lie at the beart of political policy, in the course of his work as a European Commissioner. He is prohably the best debater of any of this group except Sir Keith Josepb. He would present the same upper class image as Mr Whitelaw, hut in a more formidahle way.

Heart-warming

As against that there are objections. He was not thought to he a good constituency memher, though that was largely made up for hy Lady Soames who apart from heing a Churchill is the most unaffected and beartwarming of political wives. He has played his life in the style "le grand homme". When he

I hope the parliamentary party will give its leader the support he deserves, and scorn any strempt from any quarter to replace him. Youts faithfully, ROBERT CARY. Wrotham Water, Wrotham, Kent.

From Mr Hugh Fraser, Conservative MP for Stafford and Stone

Sir, If for the nation, as you say, there may be some comfort in the electoral result, for the Conservative & Unionist Party there can be nooe. In spite of Labour's lurch to the left, the Cooservatives since February have lost 1,500,000 votes. In Scot-land the Unionists have been humiliated and scorned, io Northern Ireland the faithful Conservative Party has been destroyed.

Merely to keep one's fingers crossed in the hopes of an ecocomic cataclysm destroying Labour is no more productive than it is patrionic. A profounder analysis is needed.

Schumpeter and other political philosophers have defined the two areas of polides as the "polides of support", that is appeal and organ-izanoo, and the "polides of power", that is policy and actioo. In both areas the present Tory party has failed, and between the two areas has actually established coorradictions,

The cruel fact is that io the area of support, except in the "mar-ginals" too many Cooservative voters did not come out. They were bemused. The machine felt alienated, the grassroots ignored. To suddenly make the least popular of the three national polizical leaders the centre of a campaign for national unity would have haffled an advertising genius. Simpler souls read it as surrender.

To some of course the appeal seemed aimed to mask failures in the area of the "politics of policy and power": the February electoral decision, the record over inflation and deficit financing, insensitivities in Sectland and grant the dubious in Scotland and even the dubious nationalization of Rolls-Royce.

The dichotomies between the area of support and the area of power rohbed the party of the will to win. It was not so much Mr Heath who failed but the monolith of apparat of inferior quality be created, a surburhan rather than a Venetian oligarchy. By silence, by coosent or by sloth the whole parliameotary party is responsible. What then should be done? Time may not be on the nation's side. It could be on that of the Conservaives. With a working majority all practical purposes of thirty, Mr Wilsoo could well ruo a full term vote. First the Protean qualities of the Conservative Party must be allowed to re-exert themselves to creste a new image and a clearer philosophy of action and that must be dooe and cao only he dooe on the floor of the House of Commons. Second whoever is to lead the Cooservative & Unionist Party must break the authoritarian system of leadership iofallibility. We should rerurn to Churchill's concept in opposition of not baving official fixed shadow spokesmen for each department. Instead we should rely more on parliamentary perform-ances, a system which produced Macmillan's cahinet and such men as the late Iain Macleod. Third the Conservative areas of support and power must he drawn closer together. As a first step the 1922 Committee should surrender its monopoly of electing the national leader. For the interim and as soon as possible a wider electoral base must be agreed, uotil a proper popular constitution has been estab-lished. In the Parliamentary Party Mr Heath still stands out head and shouloers above the oligarchy be bas created. If the Conservative natioo wants a new leadership they must perforce look outside that grouping. In the crisis in the Conservative Party the so-called Berkeley Constitutioo into which Sir Alec Douglas-Home was forced is about as helpful to Tory choice as Mr Humphry Berkeley himself who has heen defeated as a Labour just candidate.

Conservatives after the election: Mr Heath's leadership

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

For the Tories with tha Liberal vote in declice and Labour's vote static, the power hase is still there. New organization and a new form of leadership can and must be found to seize it. Yours siocerely, HUGH FRASER, House of Commons. October 13.

From Mr Peter Temple-Morris, Conservative MP for Leominster servative MP for Leominster Sir, I very much agree with that part of your leading article mday (Octoher 12) which says that the Cooservative Party was perhaps fortunate io this election. At the same fime it is perhaps useful to look at those forces which could have made the result extremely unfortunate.

After two hard battles with the Liberals this year I look oo efforts to accomplisb a reorieotation of the left with something less than enthusiasm! That does oot prevent me from sayiog that I entirely agree with the idea that British democracy would be infinitely better and more secure were there a social demo-cratic alternative to the Conservative Party However, receot efforts to promote such a reorientation have heen both wroog and appalling in the risk they bave run with the future of the Tory party. To seize on the Liberals io geoeral and a few odd rebels in particular and believe that isomehour the Labour Berry is that somehow the Lahour Party is going the split shows a certain desperation only compatible with the state of our country. The basic fact of the matter is that the Labour Party is and has shown itself to be the most powerful political force in the country. Its vote does not trifle with the luxury of a Liberal challenge and knows here its hest interest is. The party has undoubted talent at the top and would not dreem of tearing itself apart whilst there was the slightest possibility of government. For better or worse they are now in govern-

Last February Labour was put io hecause of Liberal interventioo and it became quite clear that the Liberals could only win in Tory sests. Yet incredibly many people thought that to back the Liberals was a way towards social democracy. As Liberals from Christopher Maybew downwards moved in on Tory seats a few somehow had visions sears a rew somenow had visions that all this would reorieniste or moderate the Labour Party. Is it too simple to say that the only thing that will break up the Labour Party is a succession of defeats and the only instrument for that is a moderate Tory Party unancumbered elaction perhaps the charge of dis-loyalty with be withheld when a desperate plea for change is made by this former Conservative parliamentary candidate. This is still hasically a Conserva-

But bow could the electors he expected to bring back an Administration which made so maoy wrong decisions and implemented them with unique boorishness ? Once more it is proved that the voter is io-different to socialism hus simply will oot risk a repetition of the 1970 Tory team. The Prime Miniater has now won four general elections in 10 years. Why? They are also going to cost a great deal of money. While wishing Peter Hall all the good fortune he will certainly need if he is m fill his three theatres with performances of quality, we feel that it is important at this stage to make clear that serious dangers may well arise from the occupation by the National of so claborate and presigious a complex. First, there is danger in the which will be made by the Nadooal Theatre on the resources of the Aris Council. Next year these demands seem likely m absorb some thiog like 25 per cent of the Coun-cil's annual drama budget. Progress in recent years should nut blind us to the fact that the arts are still severely undercubsidized in this couptry, particularly nutside London. The National Theatre must receive the subsidy it needs—but never at the subsidy it needs—but never at the subsidy if needs—nut never at the expense of the nation's other subsidized theatres. And if, as seems probable, we must face the prospect of cuts in the roat value of grants, this must be "across the hoard". The National's name, and its huge initial embidies construction inifial ambitinns cannot exempt it from the same obligation to economize as the rest of us. Perhaps an even more important danger is the drain, which can already be felt. on resources other than financial. For example, 10 staff its three auditoria, the National Theatre is said to be seeking 140 skilled technicians. It is doubtful whether there are many more than that number working in all the theatres of the country. From our own experience we can atlest that the National has been busy for some time already, endeavouring to attract technicians and staff from other theatres with offers of salaries far in excess of anything these theatres can afford 10 pay. The imolications of this are unhealthy. The The National Theatre is the largest single theatrical venture in this country. Its work will doubt-less confirm to the highest standards. But this does not mean that equally worthwhile, equally important work will not continue to spring from all sorts of different, sometimes unexpected, sometimes less celebrated snurces. Only thus will the theatre as a living art con-tinue to survive and flourish.

Mr Hall has said that he wishes to make the National "the nation's thearre". This is an effective slogan; but the nation has many good thearres already. Big is not always beautiful The size and the always beautiful. The size and the status of the new National Theatre must not be allowed to drain or to enfeeble the other theatres of the nation. This, we suggest, is now a dangerous possibility.

Practical

It is not clear that Mr du Cann is goiog to stand for the leadership. Nor, indeed, is it yet clear wbo would stand apart from Mr Whitelaw. Mr du Cann bas a solid chunk of support-not all of it on the right of the party. They argue that be has not heen in any way discredited by the failures, as they see them, of tha Heath administration, of which he was not a member ; that he is an excellent practical politician with a gift for rousing constituency speeches; that be understands the economic questions and indeed bas had a successful career in the City, and that be could heal the breaches in the parliamentary party because he knows the hackbeochers very well.

On the other band it bas to he recorded that there is an equally solid group which is opposed to Mr du Cann to a degree which the other candidates do not seem to face. He seems to have attracted a measure of personal hostility from which Mr Whitelaw or Sir Keith Joseph are fortunately free. He is attacked by this group on the grounds that his City career bas heen concerned in speculative finance; that he is—as indeed be is—the " banker to Lonrho". One could suspect that Mr du Cann is in fact hoth a stronger candidate and a more controversial figure than is at present recognized. He is in a way the Harold Wilson of the situation, an expert professional politician, admired by some and distrusted by others, who has hee, at odds with the regime that is coming to an end. He has not heen in Parliament since the 1966 election, and the new generation of Conservatives has for the most part never met him. There is as a result very little inclination indeed among Con-servative members of Parliament to take bim as their leader. There is also an important joh for bim to do in Brussels ; he has the confidence of the Freoch Government, the British Government and the Commission, and therefore his is a key part in achieving a successful renegotia-

The probability is therefore that Mr Heath will go fairly quickly, and that Mr Whitelaw will be elected to succeed him. It is only a probability because the Conservative Party in Parliament is not yet at all sure whom it ought to choose. All they certainly know so far is that they bave got to make a change, whether they like it or not. It will be very interesting to see how the process of selection develops when members of Parliament bave returned to Westminster and have had a chance to discuss the choice with each other; they should give themselves at least a little time. It is right that it is they who should have the cboice. Apart from the one possible candidate who is not a member of the present House. members of Parliament have had the chance to see all the candidates at work and in leisure for many years. #### Trafalgar Square plans From Mr David Cobbold

Sir, I bave read with interest Mr Sir, I bave read with interest Mr Osbert Lancaster's letter (October 11) and the admirable reply of Mr John Hale (October 12). There is, I think, no question of the National Gallery becoming "the stamping ground for public relations firms" as I am sure that this is something which the Board of Trustees would never permit. The Westminster City never permit. The Westminster City Council is, however, grateful to the Trustees for making space available in the National Gallery because it was so obviously right that these plans should be displayed in a building to which the public have easy access and particularly in one where Sir, Use of the term "Arab oil producers" by the press is unfor-tunate when it leads to misunderimmediate comparisons with the existing huildings can be made.

There is no question of "sponsor-ship" either by the National Gallery or by the Westminster City Council; the purpose of the exhibition is simply to establish public reaction in sdyance of the proposals being coosidered by the city council's town planning committee.

Judgment delivered Octoher 11] The Divisional Court remitted a case concerning cannabis leaves to Guildford justices with a direction to conduce the Ocaring and allow to confinue the Oearing and allow further scieotific evidence to be called. The justices had dismissed a charge against David John Max-well Hayes, of Park Barn, Gulld-ford, last December, that he had been in possession of 4.98 grammes of cennahls contrary to sec-tion S(2) of the Misuse of Drugs Act, 1971. The prosecutor had appealed to the Divisinnal Court by case stated. to condn not by case stated. Mr Keith Topley for the prosecu-tor, Mr Denis Kelly for the defen-

MR JUSTICE MILMO said that police found the defendant in a car police found the defendant in a car in which there was a hag contain-ing cantable leaves. It was not disputed that the defendant was in possession of the hag or that he knew it contained cannahis leaves. The prosecution, under Section 9 of the Criminal Evidence Act, 1898, bad put in a statement by Miss Howard, a sciantific officer of the Metropolitan Forensic Science the Metropolitan Forensic Science Laboratory, who had examined the leaves and had certified that they derived from the genus cannabis.

Section 37 of the Misuse of Drugs Act defined "cannabis" as "(except in the expression 'cannabis reain') the flawcring or fruiting tops of any plant of the genus Cannabis from which the resin has not been extracted, hy whatever name they may he desig-What Miss Howard had done in what what was noward had time in her certificate was in effect to state that the contents of the bag constituted the offence of being in possession of cannabis. The defen-dant look the point that the defini-tion of cannabis in section 37 did not include leaves and the investor not include leaves, and the justices found that since the bag contained no more than leaves the case was nol proved. The prosecution epplied to have Miss Howard called as a witness to enlarge on her views, but the justices refused the application

Miss Howard had been called she would have referred to Con-stable v Broady (Joly 10, 1973, unreported but the subject of an unreported but the subject of m article in the New Law Journal of October 25, 1973). In that case the Divisional Court (Lord Justice James, Mr Justice Köner Browo and Mr Justice Boreham) had con-sidered Miss Howard's evidence as to canuable leaves. to cannable leaves.

The court considered the mean lug of "the flowering or fruiting tops" of the cannabis plant. Lord Justice James said that the prosecutor had contended that the only evidance before the magistrates on which they could decide whether "flowering or fruiting tops" locinded leaves was that tops" locinded leaves was man there was no part of the cannahis plant other than the root which was not part of "the flowering or the start of and that the jusfruining top ", and that the jus-tices could therefore reach to other decision but that the leaf was included. The court beld that the justices were right. The test was not what the unfortunate effect would be if the leaf was not in-cluded, and that people might have easier access to dangerous drugs. It was a question of construction on the evidence in the case and a question of the plain construction of the statute. The effect of Miss Howard's evidence was that in respect of the cannabis plant the "flowering top" was an expres-sion by way of description applic-able to the whole of the plant above the ground.]

However the crime of rape be defined, the Crown clearly had the evidential hurden of showing the act of intercourse and absence of consent. The second element was of course, something more than the subjective unwillingness of that prosecutrix. The circumstances in which the act of intercourse took place had to be such that absence of consent was objectively demonstrated. That was appropriately emphasized by the presence of the words " by force, fear or frand " In the definition cited in Arch-bold's Criminal Pleading, Evidence and Practice (37th ed, 1969, 1933, para 2672). Who really knows the ins and outs of financing East-West trade?

The specialists in financing East-West trade are Moscow Narodny Bank. With over 50 years experience in promoting trade between East and West, Moscow Narodny is now acknowledged as the bank with the best connections and abilities in this specialised area of trade.

Moscow Narodny knows the Socialist countries exceptionally well, and enjoys close working relationships with their Central and Foreign Trade Banks. As East-West trade expands (faster than world trade as a whole over the past 12 years), Moscow Narodny is placing its specialist knowledge at the disposal of organisations wishing to trade with the Socialist countries, but who lack the specific knowledge to do so most effectively.

When you need to know the ins and outs of financing East-West trade, make sure you go to the specialists -Moscow Narodny.

Sugar soars to record levels

Fresh peaks were seen in Loodon SUGAR prices yesterday. The daily price was lifted £5 to a record E390 a loog ton. And futures forged ahead to peoetrate 0ew highs io all positions with nearby Deceeber topping the £400 mark for the first time. Limit gains of £10 a too were recorded. Buying support stemmed manny from speculative elements to-gether with some trade price fixing although fairly active switching operations tended to narrow the differentials. Also aiding the trend was the strength of the Paris market, dealers said. The closing lone was strong. of the Longoo Metal Exchange. Leading the attackers was none other than Sir Val Duncan, the chairman and chief executive of The Rio Tinto-Zinc Corporation.

In the other corner Mr Fred Wolff, the chairman of the Committee of the London Metal Exchange, backed un forcibly by Herr Karl Gustaf Ratjeo, the chairman of Metallgesellschaft AG.

AG. With characteristic thorough-oess Sir Val put his case at the American Metal Market forum at the Cafe Royal, Loo-doo. He said a small surplus of match or a smaller shortage a metal or a smaller shortage produced an artificial market price for the tonnages of metals actually being sold on the LME. These are only a tithe of those sold in accordance with its

He questioned whether the practice hitherto of pricing the bulk of these vital commodities for world consumption on the LME is satisfactory in modern trading cooditions. Ooe of the curious pheno-mena today, Sir Val said, is that monopoly legislation, originally designed for the simple purpose of ensuring booest competition in the in-terest of the consumer, now threatens to bave the effect of preventing any reasonable regulation of the market, or of criticize do nut uffer an alter-native solution : unless they mean the disastrous experience of dual pricing. This was an abysmal failure in the past.

"The whole of the cunsuming side of industry, represent-ing over 5 million innnes, deplore and arc entirely against this metbod of pricing. The primary producers seem to forget that over 40 per cent uf copper produced comes from scrap. The criticism of our market is made by those h ko do oot properly understand its function.

"A machine such as the LME is only as effective as the use made of it. Some of those in the trade stand oside virtuously wringing their bands instead of using the very instrument that can be most effective to them. "They could make the exchange an even more realistic machine, and their contribution would assist in curbing some of the very fluctuations they, deplore.'

Herr Ratjen, who also spoke forum, said the value of the LME varies conspicuously depending on the point of views of the particular individual.

A verbal battle developed last that the true form of aid the based on the inexprable law of week on the merits or demerits newly developing nations is to supply and demand. of the Londoo Metal Exchange. place them in a position where "Those why continue to place them in a position where they do not used it, namely, where they can earn an honest living of their own by selling their goods and services at thir

breakdown of society as we know it today—oervly develop-ing nations have also suffered severely from this volatility of markets.

Moreover, Sir Val said, it is actually cheaper for the industrial natioos to pay steady and reasonably buoyant prices for the metals which they import and process, and where the wealth earned by the metal pro-ducing oation goes right through the interstices of that country, rather than "haod out" pro-grammes which so frequently do not reach in full measure the people whom they are iotended to benefit.

Reasonably buoyant consistent prices include no scenario such as recently witnessed of high prices for such commodities as copper and which may now be succeeded for a period by too low origes low prices. In future Sir Val sees the

The ability to work closely together, within themselves and with others, economically, speedily, skilfully. Taylor Woodrow have it. They call it teamwork.

They are frequently asked to undertake a job from concept to conclusion, including the design and planning. Taylor Woodrow are geared to do this. They will work closely with a client's own staff and consultants. Either way, teamwork plays the vital role.

Take the 830-bedroom Tower Hotel on the Thames, by Tower Bridge, for which Taylor Woodrow Construction Limited were the main contractors. At peak, the labour force on site was over 500. Including more than 100 suppliers and sub-contractors. All had to be organised to work efficiently and harmoniously as a team.

In particular, Taylor Woodrow's Mechanical and Electrical Division had immense problems to overcome. They installed over 4,500 metres of main cabling; more than 800 fan coil units to serve the bedroom levels; and a total electrical capacity of three megawatts.

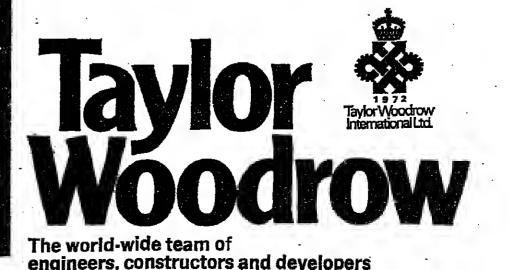

At the same time, Europe House, the former Port of London Authority building, was converted into the headquarters of World Trade Centre Services Ltd., the first phase and nucleus of the exciting World Trade Centre London project. The historic lvory Warehouse, for many years the centre of European ivory trade, was restored and converted into luxury apartments, a restaurant, and the headquarters of the Cruising Association.

The whole project is a tribute to co-operation between Clients, Consultants, and the Taylor Woodrow development and construction teams.

Many more projects of this type are under contemplation in boardrooms – it's at this stage when Taylor Woodrow should be called in.
